

! " # $ % & ' ' ( $

- h. Identification of the anatomic defects associated with various aspects of pelvic support disorders.
- i. The principal etiologies of pelvic support defects, urinary incontinence and fecal incontinence, including the effects of pregnancy and delivery.
- j. The major types of urinary incontinence, their causes, symptom complexes, physical findings and distinctions, to include
  - i. Stress urinary incontinence
  - ii. Detrusor instability
  - iii. Intrinsic sphincteric deficiency
  - iv. "Overflow" incontinence
  - v. Functional incontinence
  - vi. Urge urinary incontinence
  - vii. Mixed urinary incontinence
- k. The symptoms that may be experienced by a patient with pelvic support defects, urinary incontinence or fecal incontinence
- l. The pharmacology of medication used in the treatment of urogynecologic disorders
- m.

Elective Clinical Rotation:

1.